

At the University of Graz, researchers and students work across a broad disciplinary spectrum to enlarge our knowledge, and find strategies to deal with challenges our society is confronted with and to shape tomorrow's world. The University of Graz is a place which combines high quality academic research and teaching, where achievement is rewarded, careers are promoted, and social diversity is encouraged – all within a modern, award-winning working environment. Our motto: We work for tomorrow. Join us!

The Department of European Law focuses on the constitutional structures and nature of European Union law, its development and its effects for both Member States and individuals, and is therefore of central importance for legal education and general legal understanding.

At the Department of European Law at the Faculty of Law, the University of Graz is seeking to appoint a

Professor of European Law

(40 hours per week; selection procedure in accordance with Section 98 of the Universities Act (UG); permanent employment according to the Austrian Law on Salaried Employment (AngG); expected starting date October 1st 2025)

Based on the core areas of institutional and material European law, the professorship shall also cover the fields of international and comparative constitutional law. The focus of teaching and research will be on the normative and descriptive analysis of the interdependent structures of EU constitutional law. The successful candidate shall carry out research and teach on an interdisciplinary basis, in German and English, and shall acquire competitive third-party funds. Special importance is attached to intensive participation in international research networks. We expect participation in the Faculty's doctoral programmes.

Employment requirements:

- Austrian or equivalent foreign higher education degree corresponding with the position (doctorate/PhD)
- Habilitation or equivalent qualification in European Law
- Outstanding academic qualifications in research and teaching in the relevant discipline and for the profile of the professorship (commensurate with stage of academic career and interruptions in employment due to caring responsibilities)
- Success in attracting subject-specific project grants, particularly where competitively awarded third-party funds are concerned
- Skills in higher education didactics including the use of digital media
- Skills in the supervision and guidance of early stage researchers
- Professional experience abroad during academic career
- Management and leadership experience
- Gender mainstreaming skills
- Good knowledge of German and English

The successful candidate will be highly motivated, aiming for academic excellence and integrity in research and teaching. He/she will have demonstrated ability to collaborate constructively in a responsible manner and inspire colleagues and students in an interdisciplinary, internationally oriented context.

We offer a diverse, challenging, team-oriented working environment and a high degree of personal responsibility. Working hours are flexible and there are many options for further education and personal development.
